

CLASS (Communities for Learning Success) Fall Semester 2004

Community #1 – Beyond Homeroom, Homework, and Home: A Successful Transition to College

So here you are at last! Free to do whatever you wish! But oh, the consequences of freedom, and the responsibility required to determine your own actions and the results of those actions. Scared? Don't be. This learning community is especially designed to ease the transition to college life. You'll learn how to be a better student, and how to be a better person. You'll come to see that when approached correctly, your college years really may be the "best years of your life."

Community #2 – Technology and Careers in the 21st Century (Computer Science majors)

Seven of the ten hottest careers in the next ten years will be in the area of Information Technology. This learning community will focus on the skills, attitudes and outlook that will introduce students to successful careers in an increasingly complex and global workplace. This community is specifically designed for Computer Science majors or students considering majoring in Computer Science.

Community #3 – The Self Among Others

For freshmen, the arrival at college signals both an achievement and a stressful transition. Virtually all students come with two objectives: to achieve academically and to succeed socially; for residential students, there may be additional considerations such as making new friends, living with roommates, learning how to relate to peers, and contributing to society. In addition, college provides a unique environment for the discovery and definition of self, fostering independence, freedom, and autonomy. This CLASS, will explore these issues utilizing literature of the "self," and will create a collaborative learning environment between the individual and others through discussion and teamwork.

Community #4 - Fantastic Voyage: A Journey into the Human Mind (For Psychology majors)

Behold the real final frontier, the human mind. From why we dream to ways we can improve our memories, psychology has helped us divine a map to the deepest reaches of our brains. Here are just a few of the questions that we'll explore in this learning community: Does subliminal advertising work? What exactly is an Oedipus complex, anyway? How accurate are eyewitnesses to crimes? Are intelligence tests biased? Is ecstasy really a 'safe' drug? Why does Jack Nicholson repeatedly lock the doors in "As Good as it Gets?" In this CLASS, we'll set a course for understanding the way humans think, learn and feel. And we'll set out to prove that psychology is not just fantasies and Freud.

Community #5 – Nice Daze and Disco Nights: The Social History & Popular Culture of the 1970s

As one of the most turbulent decades in American History, the 1970s also have an enduring legacy in the collective imagination of all Americans. Beyond the stereotypes—the leisure suits, the shag carpets, and the hair—the 70's represent an important period of social transition. This CLASS will consider the lows and highs of a decade that furthered the concept of the American dream even as Watergate and Vietnam threatened that dream. We'll study the lasting popularity of 70's media—especially music, film, and television—as well as the influence the decade had upon our understanding of race, war, technology, and government. You'll have a groovy time, and as Bill Cosby reminded children of the 70's every Saturday morning, you'll learn something before we're done!

Finally, a community for students interested in money - earning it, spending it, investing it. This CLASS will provide a basic introduction and foundation for other business courses for Business majors or those seeking business-related careers. Students will work on a service learning team project that integrates aspects of business while addressing community needs. In addition to team-building skills, the community examines issues in academic, personal, professional, and financial development.

Community#7 – Current Campaign Issues – The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly

My fellow Americans, are you ready for the 2004 elections? Whether you're a political junkie or someone who can't tell your left from your right, this course is for you! With an emphasis on debate, we will examine campaign tactics, rhetoric, and propaganda in an effort to break the "secret code" of politicians and catch them in their word play. Topics will likely include education reform, corporate corruption, immigration, 9/11, cable news media, and the war on terror - bring it on! Do you shop at Wal-Mart? Do you have $30,000 to pay your share of the national debt? Do you have friends in high places? Either way, no child will be left behind. Students from Axis of Evil nations are welcome. Fair and balanced. It's the right thing to do. God bless America.

Community #8 – Duck, Duck, Goose: Understanding and Appreciating Diversity

"Duck, Duck, Goose!" If you know the rules of this child's game, you are "safe" as long as you are a "duck." If you become the "goose," you end up running around in circles. But what about difference in the Game of Life? This CLASS examines this serious question and other issues related to our understanding of differences and diversity in our world. To be successful in college and life, today's student needs to develop diversity skills just as much as study skills, academic skills, and social skills. This learning community will help students learn that understanding, celebrating, and embracing differences provides a richer environment and develops the best of everybody. Join us as we study and discuss different dimensions of diversity—including race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, ability, and age—as these images are portrayed in selected literature and popular media.

Community #9 – Creating a Global Citizenry

Cornbread and kimchi, English and Urdu, denim skirts and ao dai—these are just a few of the foods preferred, languages spoken, and garments worn by students at KSU. With its 1,400+ international students from 129 different countries, KSU serves as a microcosm of a world in which globalization is a major trend. This CLASS will examine characteristics of a variety of cultures, explore cultural similarities and differences, consider the ways in which our ideas reflect our cultural backgrounds, and discuss what can be gained (and what shouldn't be lost) as globalization continues. This community will, of course, welcome both American and international students in an effort to foster cross-cultural communication and help all students better fulfill their roles as global citizens.

Community #10 – E-Portfolio: Passport to College Success

Take your learning beyond the college transcript and join this hands-on community that guides you through the design and development of an e-portfolio. Using the latest e-portfolio technology offered at KSU, you will reflectively archive your learning experiences to honor, understand, and connect your learning. E-portfolios give you a better understanding of your learning and provide a networking opportunity for you to share your learning story for advising, choosing an academic major, internships, study abroad, career search and global issues. The e-portfolio mirrors the current culture of the workforce and higher education, which demands that college students be able to manage their learning plan for continued education to keep current with the necessary expertise development in their technologically global worksites and communities. For more information on e-portfolios at KSU consult:

Community #12 – Lost in Translation: Making Ethical Choices in a Changing World

We keep seeing and hearing the word ethics in the media. Of course, it's almost always in connection with some breach of ethics committed by a famous person or company. Just in the last two years, names of companies we'd never heard of (Enron, Worldcom . . .) have become household names. And even household names (Bill Clinton, Martha Stewart . . .) have become associated with scandals. What is happening in our world? Have people lost their sense of right and wrong? Or are they just "lost in translation," trying to choose what is right from a confusing array of options? Join this learning community to explore ethics from the global to the personal. It's the right thing to do.

Community #13 – Accent on Film: The Movies as an International Art Form

While Hollywood continues to dominate the American film market, it does so through a continual exchange of ideas and approaches with a number of foreign cinemas. This CLASS explores how film is rightly called an international art form. The learning community will include screenings and discussion of films made in a wide range of foreign countries, American films made by foreign directors, independent American movies made outside the Hollywood mainstream, and international films that borrowed and bettered American genres such as the western. Guest speakers from the Department of Foreign Languages and the Film Institute of the School of Continuing Education will further enhance your appreciation of movies as multi-cultural and multi-lingual.

Community #14 – Exploring the Mysteries of the Universe

In this community, for non-math and science majors only, students will develop a greater awareness and appreciation of the practical and fascinating realms of mathematics and science. Math and science become much more than a collection of facts when students understand that both disciplines represent a new way of looking at the world. Indeed, math and science represent a way of knowing that has revolutionized the world and the way humans think about themselves and others. In this CLASS, math and science become more than general education requirements; they become gateways to mysteries, both those that have been solved and the ones that remain to be fully understood.

What makes a person a leader? Are leaders born or made? What are the skills that make a good leader? Join us as we explore these and other questions of leadership. Opportunities to practice leadership skills will be provided through an applied service-learning activity. Broaden your understanding of volunteerism to understand that when you lead and serve others, you also help yourself.

Community #16 – Why Wellness Works: Becoming a Well-Balanced Student in an Unbalanced World

Do you want to know more about how you can become a successful student? If so, then join us as we look at the concept of "wellness." Wellness refers to more than just the absence of disease or being physically fit. The wellness model focuses on self-responsibility and encompasses six different aspects: physical, occupational, emotional, social, intellectual and spiritual. Each of the dimensions is separate, yet interrelated. Once students learn to achieve a good balance among the dimensions, they can function at their optimal level - an essential for becoming a successful student.

Community #17 – Religious Diversity

Though the American South has traditionally been termed "the Bible-Belt," the region's established Protestant faiths have become part of a much broader religious culture that incorporates all the major world religions including Judaism, Islam, and Catholicism. This CLASS will address the fundamental importance of religion not only close to home, but also around the world, and will explore the ways diverse faith perspectives can complement one another even as they promote tolerance and understanding.

Community #18 – Murder and Mayhem – Justice in the Old West

From Billy the Kid to Bat Masterson, colorful characters stepped on toes and over bodies in creating the Wild West. In a world where outlaws often became the law, along came the U.S. cavalry, the Texas Rangers, and the Pinkerton men to mete out justice. Murderers and marauders met hanging judges as churches, schools, and tent towns slowly rose on the remote prairies and plains of America. This course examines issues crucial to bringing law and order to the old West: diversity, honesty, and the courage of ordinary citizens who would make the West a safer place to raise their families.

“Psychologists sit around analyzing everyone all day.” Can this really be all there is to the field of psychology? Learn the truth! Here are a few questions that intrigue psychologists: Does subliminal advertising work? Why does Aunt Martha need to repeatedly check the locks on the door when she leaves? What exactly is an Oedipus complex, anyway? Why do we dream? How can we improve our memories? How accurate are eyewitnesses to crimes? Are intelligence tests biased? Is ecstasy really a ‘safe’ drug? (No!) Join this learning community to explore these and other fascinating psychological topics.

Community #28 – E-Portfolio: Passport to College Success

Take your learning beyond the college transcript and join this hands-on community that guides you through the design and development of an e- portfolio. Using the latest e-portfolio technology offered at KSU, you will reflectively archive your learning experiences to honor, understand, and connect your learning. E-portfolios give you a better understanding of your learning and provide a networking opportunity for you to share your learning story for advising, choosing an academic major, internships, study abroad, career search and global issues. The e-portfolio mirrors the current culture of the workforce and higher education, which demands that college students be able to manage their learning plan for continued education to keep current with the necessary expertise development in their technologically global worksites and communities. For more information on e-portfolios at KSU consult:

Community #29 – Hand in Hand: Learning and Leadership Through Community Service

What makes a person a leader? Are leaders born or made? What are the skills that make a good leader? Join us as we explore these and other questions of leadership. Opportunities to practice leadership skills will be provided through an applied service-learning activity. Broaden your understanding of volunteerism to understand that when you lead and serve others, you also help yourself.

Do you want to know more about how you can become a successful student? If so, then join us as we look at the concept of "wellness." Wellness refers to more than just the absence of disease or being physically fit. The wellness model focuses on self-responsibility and encompasses six different aspects: physical, occupational, emotional, social, intellectual and spiritual. Each of the dimensions is separate, yet interrelated. Once students learn to achieve a good balance among the dimensions, they can function at their optimal level - an essential for becoming a successful student.

We keep seeing and hearing the word ethics in the media. Of course, it's almost always in connection with some breach of ethics committed by a famous person or company. Just in the last two years, names of companies we'd never heard of (Enron, Worldcom . . .) have become household names. And even household names (Bill Clinton, Martha Stewart . . .) have become associated with scandals. What is happening in our world? Have people lost their sense of right and wrong? Or are they just "lost in translation," trying to choose what is right from a confusing array of options? Join this learning community to explore ethics from the global to the personal. It's the right thing to do.

Community #32 – Accent on Film: The Movies as an International Art Form

While Hollywood continues to dominate the American film market, it does so through a continual exchange of ideas and approaches with a number of foreign cinemas. This CLASS explores how film is rightly called an international art form. The learning community will include screenings and discussion of films made in a wide range of foreign countries, American films made by foreign directors, independent American movies made outside the Hollywood mainstream, and international films that borrowed and bettered American genres such as the western. Guest speakers from the Department of Foreign Languages and the Film Institute of the School of Continuing Education will further enhance your appreciation of movies as multi-cultural and multi-lingual.

Community #33 – Current Campaign Issues – The Good, the Bad, and the Ugly

My fellow Americans, are you ready for the 2004 elections? Whether you're a political junkie or someone who can't tell your left from your right, this course is for you! With an emphasis on debate, we will examine campaign tactics, rhetoric, and propaganda in an effort to break the "secret code" of politicians and catch them in their word play. Topics will likely include education reform, corporate corruption, immigration, 9/11, cable news media, and the war on terror - bring it on! Do you shop at Wal-Mart? Do you have $30,000 to pay your share of the national debt? Do you have friends in high places? Either way, no child will be left behind. Students from Axis of Evil nations are welcome. Fair and balanced. It's the right thing to do. God bless America.

Community #34 – Religious Diversity

Though the American South has traditionally been termed “the Bible-Belt,” the region’s established Protestant faiths have become part of a much broader religious culture that incorporates all the major world religions including Judaism, Islam, and Catholicism. This CLASS will address the fundamental importance of religion not only close to home, but also around the world, and will explore the ways diverse faith perspectives can complement one another even as they promote tolerance and understanding.

Community #36 – The Self Among Others

For freshmen, the arrival at college signals both an achievement and a stressful transition. Virtually all students come with two objectives: to achieve academically and to succeed socially; for residential students, there may be additional considerations such as making new friends, living with roommates, learning how to relate to peers, and contributing to society. In addition, college provides a unique environment for the discovery and definition of self, fostering independence, freedom, and autonomy. This CLASS, will explore these issues utilizing literature of the “self,” and will create a collaborative learning environment between the individual and others through discussion and teamwork.

Community #37 – Crime-Fighters Only Need Apply (For Criminal Justice majors)

Specifically designed for students considering a major in any field of criminal justice, this CLASS will examine the Criminal Justice system as an institution at the crux of societal concern. When individuals are asked to define major social problems, the fear of and response to crime are found at the top of the list. People not only want to have a better understanding of these problems: many also want to become a part of the solution. Join this community and become part of the solution!

Community #44 – Vive la Différence!: Living and Learning in a Foreign Country (Honors Program)

What happens when writers, artists, musicians, and scholars travel abroad? The "Learning Abroad" Honors community will attempt to address these and other questions about what we learn when we travel far and (sometimes) not so far from home. As part of this course, students will be required to attend and write about international events around the KSU campus and Atlanta, as well as participate in field trips to museums and other cultural sites. Representatives from various study abroad programs will also speak about the opportunities to learn abroad. Students must be members of the Undergraduate Honors Program to register for the community, and will receive full credit for Honors Experience I if they successfully complete both courses with an A or a B.
