"The American Jesus"
Summer 2005 (Eight-Week Session)
Dr. David Parker, Department of History
Wednesdays 5:00-6:40 p.m.
Social Science 217

This course will explore various ways in which Americans have seen, portrayed, and even used Jesus. We will look at various religious/theological interpretations of Christ, but most of the course will focus on different ways Jesus appears in literature, music, art, popular culture, sports, and so forth. What is "American" about these portrayals? We'll examine this question in the broader historical contexts that inform different manifestations of "The American Jesus."
