

Construction Management Facility Management Concentration

A Facility Manager is responsible for the maintenance and upkeep of an organization of buildings. They ensure that the building meets legal requirements and health and safety standards. They review and implement safety systems. They improve building occupants' quality of life, promote sustainability, innovate new systems and processes to increase productivity, integrate technology to improve businesses and communities.

Types of jobs:

- ◆ Facility Planning Manager
- ◆ Facility Manager
- ◆ Project Manager
- ◆ Building Supervisor

Average Starting Salary
$64,000-$78,000

Fields where a facility management graduate might work:

- ◆ Project Management
- ◆ Real Estate & Property Management
- ◆ Operations & Maintenance
- ◆ Environment & Sustainability

International Facility Management Association

- Network with key industry FM professionals for jobs, consultations ,and advice
- Membership gets attention on your resume
- Access to the IFMA Professional Blog from members all around the world to ask questions, and get advice on solving problems
- Access to the IFMA jobs announcements page
- Keep current on new FM technologies and solutions
- Scholarship Opportunities