

Program Information

College:	Clarice C. and Leland H. Bagwell College of Education
Department:	Secondary and Middle Grades Education
Program:	Secondary and Middle Grades Education, MEd

Program Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of this degree from KSU, students will be able to:

- Identify developmental processes in biological, cognitive, and social-emotional development of adolescent learners and explain implications in the school context.
- Analyze research on learning theories, explain implications of this research on adolescent learners, and apply it to an instructional context.
- Design, conduct, and report results of an original capstone research project supported by relevant literature and using professional ethical standards.